

Plastic for Lunch – How to Best Address the Issue of Marine Litter

The workshop will use an interactive format to discuss with participants, how to best address the issue of marine litter. Governments and companies are making plastics pledges, re-designing products, working with waste management companies at end of life, and are looking into banning certain plastics. In our workshop we will take a life cycle perspective to discuss the sustainability performance of various proposed solutions and identify best responses to address the issue of marine litter!
